WESTCOTT NEWS NOTES MOUNTAIN VIEW NOTES

Fields are drying and farmers are spending long hours trying to make the seeding operations and are working shifts, and it's not an uncommon sight to see tractor lines all over the country as the work goes on around the clock. Ideal growing conditions prevail and one can't help but be impressed at how quickly crops and gardens come up. There also seems to be an abundance of grass for the stock.

The work on the new United Church at Westcott is going right ahead these days and it looks very nice since it has been started.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bergman and son Kenneth of Elkton were present at the party on Tuesday last for Mr. and Mrs. B. Reinhardt.

On Tuesday evening about 35 people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Reinhardt to celebrate the newweds. Mr. and Mrs. Bernal Reinhardt. The evening was spent at community dances and games in which all took part and got acquainted with Mrs. Reinhardt who is a stranger in our midst. Mr. C. Topping, with a few well-chosen words, presented the guests of honor with a purse. Mr. and Mrs. Reinhardt fittingly thanked all those present for the gift.

Lunch was then served and everyone departed for home feeling that they had truly had a lovely time.

About 15 Boy Scouts and Cubs enjoyed the week end camping about the creek bank on the Jack Bergman's farm. Yes, the weatherman commented this time.

Government school pupils were the visiting team at Westcott last Wednesday and were defeated by the Westcott pupils, 9-7.

Tells Cheavins He's Wrong

Didsbury, Alberta May 24, 1948

Editor Oke Gazette

I am surprised at you for printing such a false and bigoted letter as that sent in by J. Cheavins of Mondak. Thank God that not all farmers are so blind in the virtues of one of the most useful of God's creatures.

Has it ever occurred to J. Cheavins that before he wrote and came to this country there were a great many more hawks than there are today and that they had been allowed to breed undisturbed by man for thousands of years? Yet, if we take the time to look at the birds of this country, we would hear that the flocks of ducks would darken the skies and the prairie would be alive with sharp tailed grouse and hunted grouse.

And yet J. Cheavins comes out with the very remarkable statement that our hawks would clean out all of our game birds in five years if left unmolested. Quite a theory Mr. Cheavins! But surely you have heard of the laws of balance of nature. If any one creature becomes too plentiful, its natural enemies increase as well and it is brought back into line.

Only man does not conform to these laws. He thinks that he is above all and that he can go around exterminating a huge number of ducks each day of the season and then brag about it. He doesn't mind wounding a few so that they die a slow and agonizing death in some lonely spot in the marsh. But of course that is quite fair and besides he had too many to eat anyway.

Now to print a few more of Cheavins' statements.

I have studied hawks for a long time and if I am to believe my own eyes and those of all the naturalists who have studied hawks all their lives and know a lot more about them than I do or Mr. Cheavins for that matter, it would appear that hawks don't like the taste of raw, fried or poached. But mice and conifers, that is another story. What farmer who has eyes has not been surprised to see a divine Swallowhawk coming out of the sky he thought was empty to snatch at a field mouse that he had just uncovered with his tiller or plow. There isn't a day of the year that I am working on the land that one or more of these hawks is not watching me from atop a telephone pole or from a blood red fir tree waiting for that moment to happen. And all the time ducks, partridge and rabbits fly about their business completely unmolested.
